DAUGHERTY TAKES CRONKHITE CASE

Promises Inquiry Before Taking Action With Rosenbluth.

SEES SENATOR CALDER

Captain Will Retain His Liberty Unless Indicted in Washington State.

MADE GOOD IMPRESSION

Secretary Hoover Says He Is Not Type of Man to Commit Such Crime.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
New York Herald Bureau,
Washington, D. C., April 21.

Attorney-General Daugherty gave assurances to Senator Calder (N. Y.) to-day of a thorough personal investigation of the Cronkhite case before any action is taken with respect to Capt. Robert Rosenbluth. In the meantime Rosenbluth will be at liberty unless he is indicted and extradited by the State of Washington.

After his conference with Senator Calder the Attorney-General said he had seen Rosenbluth and Mrs. Katherine Davis of New York, who accompanied him, several weeks ago.

Mrs. Davis at one time was head of the New York State Reformatory.

"At that time," said Mr. Daugherty, "Rosenbluth told a straightforward story. He bore a letter of introduction from Secretary Hoover, and I determined to investigate. I have given instructions that Rosenbluth is not to be taken back unless the court orders it. We now have all of the facts possible to get up to this time. What we want to do is to get any possible corroborative evidence which will shed light on the statement implicating Rosenbluth. Senator Calder saw me this morning and asked for assurance of a thorough investigation, and it was given."

Senator Calder said later he had talked with the Attorney-General, but that Mr. Daugherty had refused to see Rosenbluth, who had come to Washington to go to the Department of Justice with him. Refusal of the Attorney-General to see Rosenbluth was based on the ground that as the Attorney-General was handling an investigation, in which Rosenbluth was in a sense the defendant, it would not be proper to see him.

At the Department of Justice it was explained that when Rosenbluth was received in the first place the Attorney-General had not taken up the case.

Secretary Hoover said to-day that he had given Rosenbluth a letter because he was acquainted with him and his character. Mr. Hoover said that in his opinion the former captain was not the type of man and did not have the mind to plot a cold blooded crime. He became acquainted with Rosenbluth, he said, when the latter was aiding him in Red Cross relief work in Europe after the armistice.

The Attorney-General said to-day the question of Federal or State jurisdiction had not been settled. If the alleged murder was committed on the Camp Lewis rifle range the case would come within the Federal jurisdiction. If it occurred off the Government reservation, it would be a State matter. The Attorney-General said that if Rosenbluth was indicted and extradited by the State of Washington the State order would not be interfered with by the Federal authorities.

It is understood that witnesses cited by relatives of Major Cronkhite and by Rosenbluth will be called by the Attorney-General after he has read the record. Capt. Rosenbluth may remain in Washington until some of the points at issue in the case are decided.

MODERN GIRL'S RAIMENT SHOCKS GRANDMA OF 80

Old Fashioned Miss and Her Ways Win Majority Vote of Pittsburgh Club After Thorough Discussion of Habits Then and Now.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
Pittsburgh, April 21.—The old-fashioned girl, the kind of a girl she was sixty years ago, is just the kind of a girl she would be again if she had her life to live over, said Mrs. J. S. McKelvy, prominent club woman, grand-mother and almost an octogenarian, in speaking to the Wednesday Current Events Class last night. She and others responded to the question: "What would you do if you were young again?"

One class member, recalling the fact that women in her youthful days were barred from entering professions, said she would train to be a physician. The response made by another, that she would be a movie actress, revealed the fact that the dream of movie stardom entertained by many girls also is the dream of mature women.

The attention-attracting makeup and apparel of the girls of to-day were facetiously referred to by Mrs. McKelvy, who is spoken of as being "80 years young" by her fellow members of the club, of which she is the oldest in point of years.

The ear biscuits affected by modern maid came up for ridicule by Mrs. McKelvy when she was stating the things she would not do if she were a girl again. She did not approve "them taking their pompadours down from the top of their heads and wearing them over their ears."

Painting of cheeks and rouging of lips, now so popular in the way of facial adornment, she objected to. Neither would Mrs. McKelvy let the bottom of her skirts get so closely acquainted with the knees. She and most of the others, although admitting that the girl of to-day may be more aggressive, progressive and self-reliant, agreed that they would cast their votes in favor of the old-fashioned girl.

The hoop skirt and the minuet and other stately dance manuevres popular in the days when grandma was a girl were all right, while the abbreviated skirt and the "foolish and fantastic cinches" in a terpsichorean way of the modern girl are vastly wrong. She declared she could not "see" jazz.

TRAIL SUSPECT IN SLAYING OF COUNT

Detectives Seek Recent Visitor to Atlantic City and Try to Trace Baggage.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
ATLANTIC CITY, April 21.—Detectives investigating the murder of Count Heinrich von Pickler returned to this city to-night and said they are on the trail of a person who recently was a guest at a hotel on the boardwalk here and who is believed to have been the driver of the automobile in which the Count was murdered.

To-morrow morning the detectives will pick up the trail, which they say lies somewhere within ten miles of here. The man who is sought registered at the St. Charles Hotel, where the Count, under the name of Henry Bielow, worked as a clerk.

The detectives have learned positively, they say, that the men they are after closely resembled that guest who was at the hotel for several days. Employees of the hotel have been questioned, and an effort is now being made to trace baggage. The man was employed as a chauffeur by a New York family, but a trip to New York convinced the detectives that they had been trailing the wrong chauffeur.

County authorities have learned that Von Pickler had a brother-in-law, a scientist, who accompanied Capt. Roald Amundsen on his dash to the South Pole. They learned this from a former employee of the Belgravia Hotel in Philadelphia. Unless some new development arises in Philadelphia, the detectives said, efforts to locate the murderer there will be abandoned.

MRS. RANKINE REPORTED SEEN IN NEW LONDON

Was Walking to Providence,
Says Y. W. C. A. Employee.

NEW LONDON, Conn., April 21.—Mrs. C. C. Branch, an employee of the Y. W. C. A. in this city, to-day said that about three weeks ago she admitted to that institution early in the morning a woman, who she believed fitted the general description of Mrs. Annette Rankine, wealthy New York widow, for whom the New York police are making an active search. When last seen the woman was headed for the Thames River highway bridge, stating her intention to walk to Westerly and Providence.

New York police last night sent a message to the local police asking that "an exhaustive search" be made for Mrs. Rankine here.

TOWN AIDS MOTHER AND TWO CHILDREN

Woman With Baby Carriage on Three Wheels, Walking to Indiana, Halts Journey.

Mrs. Mary Allen of Baltimore walked into Police Headquarters at Elizabeth, N. J., late yesterday afternoon, wheeling a baby carriage with three wheels and followed by her two children, Lillian, aged 10, and Robert, aged 8. She told the police that she and the two children were walking from Rutherford, N. J., to Wabash, Ind., because her husband was ill with tuberculosis in a Baltimore sanitarium, that she had no money whatever, and that she wanted to reach the home of her brother in the Indiana town. She asked permission to remain at headquarters overnight, but Mayor Victor Mravag of Elizabeth said that she had quarters at a hotel.

Mrs. Allen told the Elizabeth police, as she had told the police of Newark, when she passed through there the day before, that she and her husband had lived in Baltimore for some years, but that recently he became ill with tuberculosis. He went to a sanitarium, and she sold her furniture, hoping to get enough money to go to the home of her brother, Charles Gray, in Wabash. But the furniture did not realize enough, and she came to New York, she said, to find her brother, but the city was so big that she could not find him. She was taken care of by the police while she was in New York, she said.

"They were awfully kind to me," she said. "They gave me a police whistle, and said I could blow it if I got into trouble."

Finding no one who knew in New York where he was, she said, and after several days there decided to walk with her two children to Wabash. She was asked both in Newark and Elizabeth why she had not written to her brother for funds to go to his home, but she was not quite certain why she had not done so. Anyway, she said, her brother was out of work and did not have much money.

At any rate, she left Rutherford early Wednesday morning and appeared at the Newark Sixth Precinct police station late Wednesday night, saying that she and Lillian had walked the eighteen miles from Rutherford and wheeled Robert in the baby carriage.

She was permitted to sleep in the police station Wednesday night, and set out for Elizabeth early yesterday morning. On the outskirts of Newark an automobile, she said, knocked a wheel off the baby carriage, and so both Robert and Lillian walked from Newark to Elizabeth. Mayor Mravag notified Mrs. Allen last night that if she would come to his office this morning he would see that she received a ticket to Wabash and enough money to provide food during the journey.

L. W. SEIDMAN IS KILLED.

ELMHURST, April 21.—Lewis W. Seidman, 28, of Newark, a member of the firm of Seidman & Seidman, expert accountants, Park Row, New York city, was instantly killed to-day near Yonkers, twenty miles from here, when his automobile ran off the highway and overturned. E. M. Shepard and Robert L. Harris of Newark and J. S. Lasser of Jansentown, passengers with Mr. Seidman, escaped injury.

"We have been advised," said a statement of the American Civil Liberties Union, "that William D. Haywood is on his way to Moscow to attend the International conference of the Federation of Trade Unions in June. Since learning of his departure we have been further informed that Mr. Haywood left some time before the Supreme Court decision and that he intends to return to serve sentence immediately after the conference."

"The American Civil Liberties Union has been for three years active in assisting the I. W. W. Defense Committee, of which Haywood was secretary-treasurer until replaced a year ago. After dealing with Haywood for three years in all the details of the defense work, we are at a loss to understand how he could have brought himself to leave the United States while his case was pending, whatever his intentions as to returning."

"His going is a severe blow to the I. W. W., whose record of fulfilling their obligations has been unimpaired by a single case of jumping bond. No possible conception of service to the cause of labor could justify Haywood's deserting his forty-five associates who are out on bond with him in the same case. He is under $5,000 bond in the Chicago case and $10,000 more in other cases. The Civil Liberties Union has no connection whatever with the I. W. W."

BOMB SUSPECT PUT ON GRILL FOR HOURS

Ligi Admits Being an Anarchist, but Denies Part in Wall Street Plot.

SCRANTON, Pa., April 21.—Tito Ligi, the Italian arrested here Tuesday on suspicion of connection with the Wall street explosion of September 16, quit his job here as a common laborer eight days before the disastrous blast, the police learned to-day. They were unable to trace his movements from that time until early in October, when he was reemployed on a construction job in this city.

For four hours this afternoon the man was examined, local interrogators being assisted by a Department of Justice agent and a detective who arrived early to-day from New York. Ligi reiterated his admission of being a draft evader during the war, and of being an anarchist, but he denied he had been in New York at any time during the last seven years. During all that time, he was quoted as saying, he remained in Scranton and nearby towns.

The New York detective, Thomas Martin, said after seeing the prisoner that he did not conform in some respects to the two persons who gave descriptions of the death wagon driver. It was said they might be brought here to try to identify the prisoner. One of them is the father who a few days before September 16 shot the horse which was hitched to the wagon that carried the explosives. Identity of the other is unknown here.

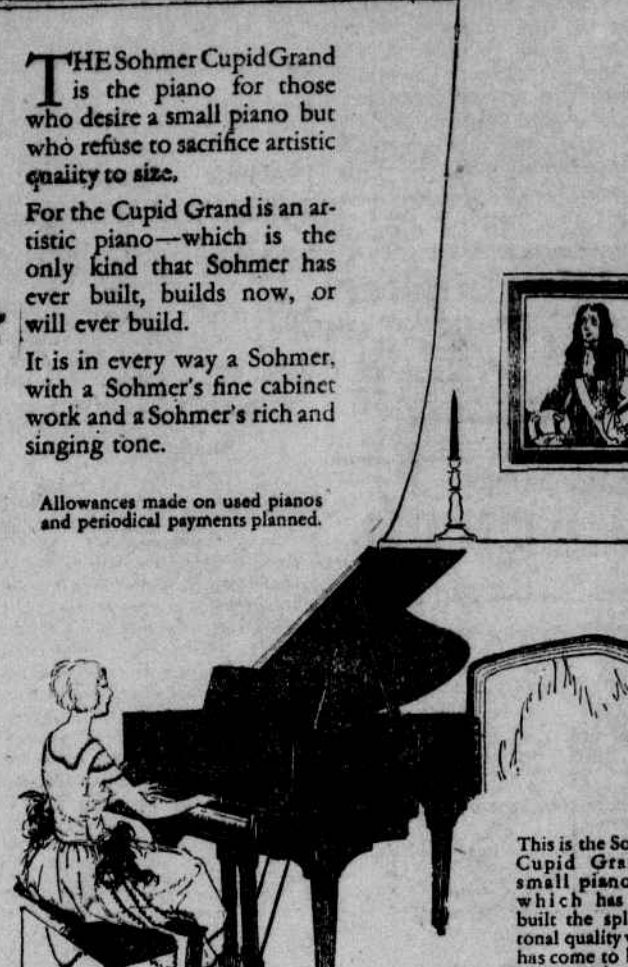

John Memolo, attorney for Ligi, announced to-day he would apply to-morrow for a writ of habeas corpus in the District Court at Scranton. Ligi is being held on a charge of evading the military selective service.

Broken slugs, apparently sections of window weights, such as were peppered against Wall street buildings with terrific force when the explosion occurred, were found to-day in the rear of a restaurant where Ligi was employed until the eve of his arrest. Local newspaper reporters who found the bits of jagged metal thrown together in a tin can, turned them over to official investigators.

Whether the prisoner, who is 27 years old, will be taken to New York, could not be learned to-night. Investigators expected to put him through another bombardment of questions to-morrow. To-night they were endeavoring to find out his whereabouts at the time of the explosion.

Capt. Arthur J. Carey, head of the Homicide Squad, received the fingerprints, Bertillon measurements and a photograph of Tito Ligi from Scranton yesterday, but declined to say if the measurements or prints tallied with any of those on file in the Bureau of Criminal Identification at Police Headquarters. Capt. Carey and Inspector Courlin, head of the Detective Bureau, held a conference, at the end of which it was announced that the local authorities would have nothing to say about the Scranton arrest since William J. Flynn has assumed charge of the investigation.

SOHMER FOR TONE

THE Sohmer Cupid Grand is the piano for those who desire a small piano but who refuse to sacrifice artistic quality to size.

For the Cupid Grand is an artistic piano—which is the only kind that Sohmer has ever built, builds now, or will ever build.

It is in every way a Sohmer, with a Sohmer's fine cabinet work and a Sohmer's rich and singing tone.

Allowances made on used pianos and periodical payments planned.

This is the Sohmer Cupid Grand, a small piano into which has been built the splendid tonal quality which has come to be associated everywhere with the name of Sohmer.
